Suspect steals man's ID to buy sports car

Wednesday, October 11, 2017

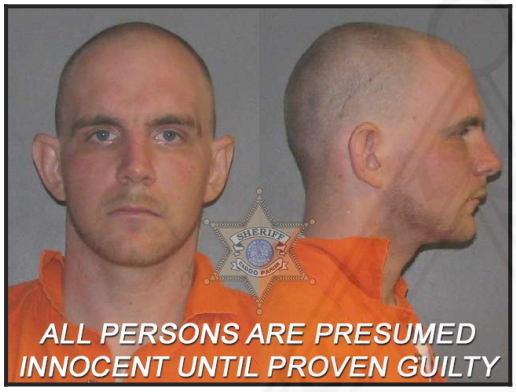

Caddo deputies have arrested a man for posing as someone else to purchase a sports car, said Sheriff Steve Prator.

On December 7, 2016, Allen Drent, 30, who has no known address, used a fictitious driver's license with someone else's personal information to obtain financing for a 2017 Chevy Camaro. The car was valued at $46,330.

Drent left the dealership with the Camaro and attempted the same scheme in Arlington, Texas. The dealership in Arlington became suspicious of Drent and contacted the Arlington Police Department. Drent was subsequently arrested and booked into the Arlington Police Department Jail.

On October 9, Drent was extradited back to Caddo Parish and was booked into the Caddo Correctional Center for Identity Theft related to the 2016 offense in Shreveport. Detective Jeremy Edward said the Camaro was returned to the Shreveport dealership but the victim of the Identity Theft must still deal with the $46,000 loan taken out in his name.
