

Woman charged with using stolen credit card numbers

Friday, September 4, 2009

A Shreveport woman is facing criminal charges for stealing credit card numbers obtained when she was an employee at a retail store.

Dawanna C. Crowley, 23, of the 4300 block of Illinois, was in jail when Caddo Sheriff's Detective James Lewis filed three additional counts against her for unauthorized use of an access card.

Crowley copied credit card numbers from three store customers and used them to buy gift cards for herself totaling $7,561.

She remains in Caddo Correctional Center and is also charged with attempting to obtain CDS by fraud for stealing a physician's prescription pad.
