

Woman arrested for using lost credit card

Tuesday, March 18, 2008

A woman who thought it was a "blessing" when she found someone's lost credit card may be having second thoughts. Kimberly M. McClure is now in jail for using the credit card for personal gain.

Caddo Sheriff's Detective Alan Davidson, of the Caddo-Shreveport Financial Crimes Task Force, said McClure found a credit card that had been reported lost and used it to purchase $1,000 worth of gift cards from a local business. She then used the gift cards to purchase items for herself.

McClure, 36, of the 6300 block of Boyter Lane in Shreveport, was booked into Caddo Correctional Center for forgery and theft.
