Third suspect arrested for buying pizza with stolen credit card info

Wednesday, May 12, 2010
The third suspect who used stolen credit card information to purchase thousands of dollars in food and beverages from Domino's Pizza has been arrested, said Sheriff Steve Prator.

Ryan Olah, 20, of Bossier City, was booked into Caddo Correctional Center for being a principal to identity theft. He was arrested following an investigation by Caddo Sheriff's Detective Bobby Herring.

Francis Gallagher, 21, and Taylor Powell, 17, were previously arrested for using the stolen card numbers to purchase food.

Olah and Gallagher were one-time roommates and used the cards to purchase at least $5,800 in pizza from Domino's while they lived together. In all, approximately $10,000 in pizza, sandwiches, chicken wings, and soft drinks were charged to the stolen credit cards between August 2009 and January 2010. Most of the charges were made by Gallagher.
